This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. # PREFACE.

Some years ago the author of this Word List, being convinced that spelling learned incidentally, by absorption, was a failure, prepared a list of words for use in the schools under his supervision without any intention of making a "spelling book," but repeated calls for the list have induced him to make it available by publishing it.

When used according to the author's plan it is not merely a speller but an elementary word study, although not expected to take the place of a dictionary in the upper grades.

The list contains over six thousand of the commonest words of our language, graded according to their "content" rather than according to their length, and arranged in groups adapted to a definite plan outlined under "Suggestions to the Teacher."

For convenience in finding any desired word of a grade, the words are given in alphabetical order, except, where homonyms and words easily confused have been separated.

The list of words for the eighth grade, together with the supplementary list, furnish twice as many words as are given in other grades, for the convenience of schools having nine grades, and also for those teachers who may wish to give longer lessons in this grade.

The most difficult words of each grade, except of the first and last, are repeated at the end of the assignment for each year. Many words not likely to be misspelled are introduced in order that the pupil may add them to his vocabulary.

In the upper grades a few helpful rules, with brief lists of prefixes and suffixes, have been introduced.

Believing that the spelling of proper names should be learned when necessary in connection with the lessons in which they occur, the author has, with few exceptions, excluded them from this list.

In his opinion, the words should be presented to the eye of the learner just as they ordinarily appear—without division into syllables or diacritical marks. At first thought many teachers doubt the wisdom of this method, but a careful consideration of the psychological side of the question and a thorough examination of practical results will convince most persons of its correctness and importance. During the teaching of the words, they may be divided and marked upon the blackboard, if the pupils have trouble with the syllabication or pronunciation.

SUGGESTIONS TO THE TEACHER.

REMEMBER that spelling should be carefully and systematically taught, and that only a few words should be assigned for a lesson.

ENDS.—Aim not only to secure correct spelling but the incorporation of the words into the pupil's working vocabulary.

THE ORDER OF STEPS.—In teaching a new word the sequence should be as follows: 1. Its form written or printed without division into syllables and without diacritical marks. A correct visual image is the beginning of correct spelling. Marks and division into syllables change the form or appearance of the word.

2. The correct pronunciation. If necessary, present the word properly divided and marked upon the blackboard; then erase it. One does not know a word until he recognizes it in its usual form and can pronounce it accurately without the aid of division or marks. In the use of words, whether in speaking, reading or writing, he will have no such aids. In this connection give such instruction in syllabication and diacritical marking as may be needed and call attention to words which are pronounced one way when used as verbs and another way when used as nouns or adjectives; as re-bel', reb'-el; sur-vey', sur'-vey. Occasionally have a pronouncing test, using words that have been taught.

3. The meaning, which should be clearly in the pupil's mind before he attempts to spell the word. The form and meaning should be associated constantly. Teach pupils of the fifth grade and above not only the commonest meanings of each word but lead them to discover synonyms and antonyms, being careful to explain shades of difference between synonymous words. The meaning of a word is made more definite not only by comparing it with words of similar meaning but also by comparing it with those of opposite meaning.

4. The arrangement of letters, if peculiar or likely to be mistaken; otherwise say nothing about the arrangement.

5. Practice in writing the word with its meaning in mind.

METHODS.—The following have been found good: 1. On Monday write neatly and clearly upon the blackboard in front of the class twenty words in groups of five, and teach the first five. On Tuesday dictate these to the class for spelling and teach the next five, and so on through the week. On the next Monday review the twenty words of the preceding week and place twenty new words on the board. By this plan the words are before the eyes of the pupils a week—long enough to make their forms familiar.

2. After the first three months, the words of the first grade may be used as lists to be copied, for busy work in word-building and, during the last half-year, for practice in oral spelling.

3. Above the second grade the spelling lesson should usually be written. The recitation may be conducted in various ways, among them the following: a. The teacher dictates the words and the pupils write them as a test. b. The teacher dictates the words and the pupils write sentences involving the correct use of the words. c. The teacher dictates sentences involving the correct use of the words and the pupils write them.

4. Every few weeks there should be a general review of the words, or, at least, the most difficult words, taught during the year. This may be either written or oral. Occasionally, however, it is well to have a good, old-fashioned oral "spelling match," notice of which should be given several days in advance. No pupil should be allowed a second trial in case he misses the first time. There should be no guessing.

5. In the upper grades, after some instruction in regard to prefixes and suffixes, the teacher should be at liberty to dictate derivatives, instead of the words given in the lesson.

6. The few rules given in the upper grades are of sufficiently wide application to warrant their complete mastery.

7. Never teach homonyms, or words easily confused, in the same lesson.
